

Case Study

The LSIP Keystone employer initiative has been a great opportunity for Offset Films. As we consider growth within the creative sector and the future of our video production company, the introductions and partnerships we have made through the initiative are vital in providing a path forward.

The connections provided by Sara and the team have given us a voice in helping to cover the relevant skills gaps we are discovering within the industry. It has given us a direct route to provide workshops and education to help fill those current skills gaps.

We look forward to our continued work with the LSIP keystone employer initiative as well as many of the partnerships we have forged throughout the programme. By taking proactive steps to guide and train the next generation of creatives, we know that in the long run we will gain much more than we input.
